¿Qué es la voz y cómo se produce?

- La voz es el sonido que producen las cuerdas vocales al vibrar, lo produce el aparato fonador. . Al espirar, el aire que se expulsa de los pulmones pasa por los bronquios, después, por la tráquea y, finalmente, llega a la laringe. Cuando las cuerdas vocales se tensan, el aire las hace vibrar y se originan sonidos.
- Cuando estos sonidos llegan a la boca, se modifican por el movimiento de los labios, la lengua, el velo del paladar y el maxilar inferior. De esta manera, se producen los diferentes sonidos que utilizamos al hablar.

ANÁLISIS DE VOZ

- El análisis acústico de la voz es un método de evaluación vocal objetivo y no invasivo, utilizado con fines terapéuticos e investigativos.
- Utiliza registros acústicos obtenidos directamente de la voz del paciente mediante el uso de un micrófono sensible.

SISTEMAS IMPLICADOS EN LA PRODUCCIÓN DE LA VOZ

SISTEMA SIMPÁTICO

Laringeo Recurrente es ramal del Vago

THE VAGUS NERVE

The latin translation for this is the wandering nerve. It is the longest nerve in the human body, and plays an essential role in survival, social engagement, sensing safety and generating joy.

80 - 90% of the Vagus nerve is actually conveying information from the body to the brain. Vagal Nerve stimulation can make a significant difference for us.

FREQUENCY

Energy moves in frequencies.

In turn, these frequencies create synchronized vibrations that are at the heart of physical reality.

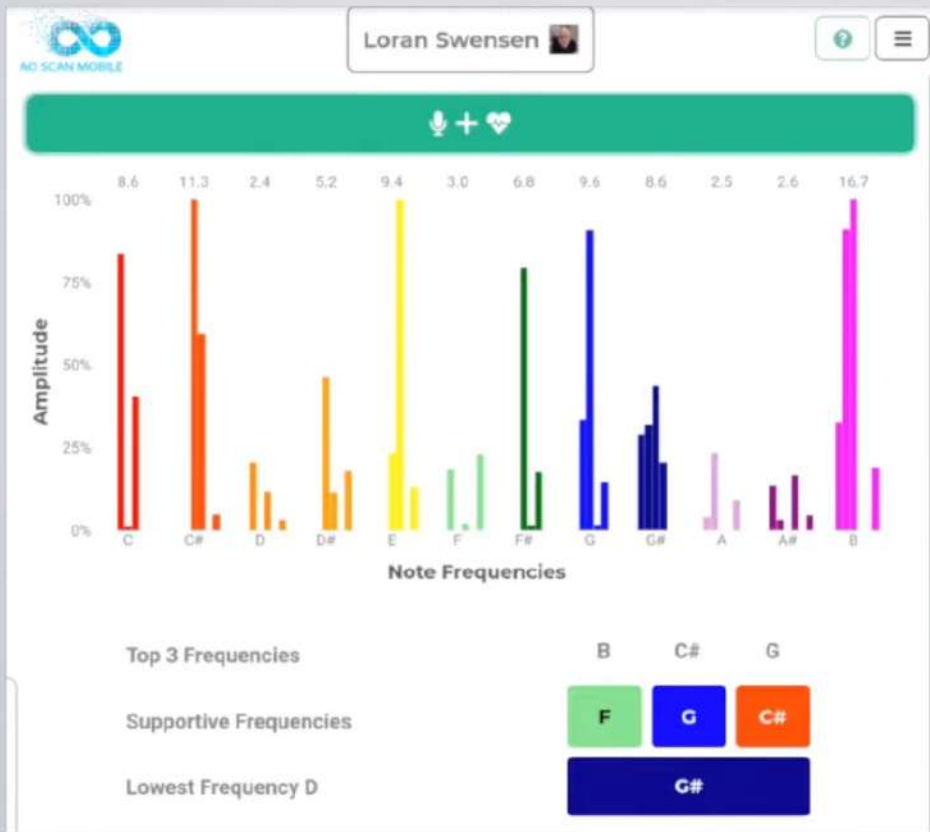

The AO Scan Program Is Your Master Control Center

It uses energy,
frequency, vibration and resonance to guide your body toward Blueprint Homeostasis.

CUANDO ABRIMOS LA PANTALLA VEMOS

- La señal captada con el micrófono de Aoscan es preamplificada y digitalizada utilizando una interfaz que dispone de una tarjeta de sonido que soporta resoluciones de 16 bits y frecuencias de muestreo de 44.100 Hz.
- Para el tratamiento de la señal, se necesita del programa específico que grafique la información acústica y entreguen sus respectivos resultados numéricos.

HOW INNER-VOICE WORKS

Inner-Voice technology uses sound harmonizing techniques, which generate balancing audio frequencies derived from the voice spectrum excesses, and weaknesses, in the human voice.

Stated plainly, Inner-Voice diminishes frequencies that are in excess and supplements frequencies that we lack.

Inner-Voice records your voice and analyzes twelve notes across nine octaves, C, C#, D, D#, E, F, F#, G, G#, A, A#, B. Inner-Voice focuses on the three high notes that are excessively out of balance, or over represented, as well as the lowest note that is being suppressed.

Every single note produces a series of tones called the "overtone series". The human ear tends to hear these subtle variations as essentially the same. Inner-Voice technology is designed to accurately capture and analyze this data.

Inner-Voice helps harmonize our everyday life by improving: Concentration, Creativity, Mindfulness, Emotional Intelligence, Stress Management and Interpersonal Relationships.
